High School Plans Senior Exercises

Students Announce General Theme to be "This, Our Concern."

The Horace Mann Commencement program will be held on the night of May 10, at the College auditorium. The seniors are planning for speeches all of which will have for a general theme, "This, Our Concern." Some of the points to be considered are: (1) A review of high school activities and how they have prepared us for the future, (2) A survey of what will be open for us in the immediate future, (3) A frank look at the future—for the world—problems and possibilities, (4) Our dream for the future world — problems and possibilities, and (5) Our dream for the future world and what we can contribute to achieve it.

The speeches are entitled: "Are We Prepared?" "We Choose Our Way;" "Looking to the Future;" and "Our World Tomorrow." The speeches will be given by Jimmie Thompson, Lucile Cockayne, Est Jean Birkenholz, and William T. Garrett. It has not been decided which of the speeches each student will give.

Musical numbers included in the program are a trumpet solo, a piano solo, a number by the Boys' Quartet, and "Lift Thine Eyes" by the Girls Trio.

The Baccalaureate services for the Horace Mann seniors will be held on May 12, the Sunday before the Commencement exercises. The services will be held in the Morning service at 10:15 o'clock at the Christian Church. Reverend Franklin Kohl will speak.

President Jones Visits University of Minnesota

President J. W. Jones represented the College at the University of Minnesota at the inauguration ceremonies for James Lewis Morrill, eighth president of the university, on Thursday, April 25.

"It was a gorgeous spectacle," said the president in discussing the inauguration. "There were some 275 to 300 delegates, besides the whole faculty of the university, in academic robes."

In conjunction with the inauguration there was held a national educational conference on "The Urgencies of One World." The president attended this conference. It had to do with the challenges that were being made to institutions of higher learning.

"Between sessions," said President Jones, "I interviewed prospective teachers for the College—that was my third reason for going to the University of Minnesota."

Horace Mann Girl Is Queen

Margaret Fisher, a senior at Horace Mann high school, is the Nodaway county candidate for queen of the Apple Blossom Festival in St. Joseph this Friday, Saturday and Sunday. She was chosen from representatives of 14 Nodaway county high schools Monday in a beauty contest at the Tivoli theater. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fisher, sr., of Maryville.

Dr. Painter Talks Before A.A.U.P.

Says Best Dramas Are Not Reflectors of Facts Current in Age.

"The drama reflects concepts, rather than the news of the day," said Dr. Anna M. Painter in talking to the Maryville chapter of the American Association of University Professors at a meeting held Monday evening, April 22, at the dream kitchen. She was speaking on "Drama as a Reflector of Contemporary Life."

Mentioning the fact that in the Elizabethan plays that have survived as great plays there is a lack of allusions to the discoveries of great scientists, the bold seamen's efforts to make great geographical discoveries, Dr. Painter asserted that there are sound reasons for this lack of allusions. "The dramas that earn a permanent place in literature do so on universal rather than particular grounds. The business of the so-called literature of power as distinct from the literature of knowledge is not so much with facts as with values. . . . Contemporary discoveries in science, or events that transpire unexpectedly and not at hand, remain objective to most people, for these things at first do not seem to affect them personally. The dependent of coal imports something in the future, Norway is more dependent on the sea than any other country. The merchant marine used to be the fourth largest in the world. Steamers are the most important means of communication, although there are some railways.

People Work Hard. Norway has 3 million inhabitants. The Norwegians are a homogeneous people. They are supposed to be light-haired and blue-eyed. The living conditions determine their character traits. They are industrious as a matter of necessity. They are devoted to farm life and have a passion for the sea, because these are means by which the people support themselves. Especially the coast population submit themselves

Governor Donnelly to Be on Campus May 22 to Speak at Commencement

Flora Flores, Here From Costa Rica, Wins Honor

Miss Flora Flores, a student of the College from Puntarenas, Costa Rica, has had the honor of a request that her report to the chairman of the Committee on Selection be printed in Spanish for the weekly newspaper for women, "Mujer y Hogar." The report is the second of two reports required of Miss Flores, as of all foreign students who come to colleges in the United States on scholarships.

It is an honor not only to Miss Flores that her report should be considered valuable enough to be printed as from among the many reports that were received but to the College as well. The report has to do with the activities of Miss Flores here at the College and with her general impression of life in the United States as she has met it here in Northwest Missouri and at the College in particular.

The request comes to Miss Flores from Miss Eleanor T. Middleitch, regional secretary of the Latin American division of the Institute of International Education. Her letter, in part, follows: "Mr. Albert E. Carter, the Cultural Relations Attaché in San Jose, has written us that Mr. Macaya, Chairman of the Committee on Selection, has suggested that your Report in some what condensed form might be of interest to the readers of the weekly newspaper for women, 'Mujer y Hogar.' If you are willing to have the Report used, will you be good enough to write us permission for its use?"

Work Starts on Six Housing Units

Each Unit to Consist of Four Apartments With Four Rooms Each.

Work has already begun on a housing project on the College campus, according to an announcement, April 22, President J. W. Jones. Monday, April 22, President Jones and Mr. Lon Wilson were in Chicago consulting the Federal Public Housing Authority. This group approved the site for the houses and authorized the beginning of the work that the College is to supply.

According to the president, the work done by the College will be finished by May 11, and the F.P.H.A. contractor will arrive on May 13 to superintend the erection of the housing units. The houses are to be brought to Maryville from Clarinda, Iowa.

The houses will be erected in the open space east of the Library and south of the Industrial Arts building. They will be arranged in two rows of three houses in each row, with a service road between them. Each housing unit is to consist of four apartments. In each apartment there will be a living room, bedroom, kitchen, and bath.

Application forms for the rental of apartments may be secured from Dean M. C. Cunningham. They will be considered on the basis of need, order of applications received, and registration in the College. No apartment will be rented to a person not registered in the College. All applications are to be acted upon by a committee made up of Dean Cunningham, Mr. Lon Wilson, dean of men, Mr. Harold Neese, business manager and the president of the Veterans' Club.

The rental program is being worked out by the Administration. This program must be submitted to the F.P.H.A. for approval. "No announcement of rental regulations will be made," said President Jones, "until the F.P.H.A. has approved them."

Short Course Begins. Eighty-eight new students enrolled for the short course session Monday, April 22. The classes will meet twice a day, and five semester hours credit may be obtained during this session. The short course session will end May 24.

Norway: Its Culture and Institutions

ODD STEINSHOLT

"With law shall we build our land, not with lawlessness lay it waste"—so reads the introduction to Norway's ancient code of law. And so reads those of Denmark and Sweden as well. A common principle of Scandinavian society, fundamental to all nations of the North, has found expression in these words. The codes as we have them today were written in the thirteenth century. But the formula is certainly much older as it appears from its poetic, alliterative form. And the principle it proclaims lies at the base of Scandinavian history as far back as we are able to discern.

As we find it in the Southern European history, the people from the North—the Vikings—were thought of as a gang of wild barbarians who swooped down upon their civilized countries. Terror-stricken they prayed: "Free us, Lord, from the frenzy of the Northmen!"

One should not minimize this aspect of the Viking raids. From a historical point of view, however, other aspects are more important. On the one hand, we have the impulses in art, politics, and religion which the Vikings brought home. On the other hand, we have their constructive work in other countries. From personal experience I would mention that the people of the Isle of Man still regard themselves as cousins of the Norwegians, and that their fundamental constitution is a heritage from this time. Their assembly is called Tynwald, an old Norwegian word probably adopted in the tenth century.

Norway Is Ancient. The kingdom of Norway was founded in the end of the ninth century, and it is thus one of the oldest European kingdoms. It is a noteworthy fact that one of the main tasks of the new national king was to organize the common law. The texts of this, though expressed in rules for specific cases, form a coherent system that may well bear comparison with the Roman law. To judge from the law, Norway is one of the oldest democracies in Europe. The king was not only the defender of the law in his kingdom, he was also bound in duty to it. It says: "No man shall attack another in his home, neither the king, nor any other man. If the king does this, the arrow shall be sent forth through all the shires, and men shall go upon him and slay him; if he escapes, he shall never be allowed to return to the land."

The fundamental principle was expressed in this sentence: "Whoever shall deny law to another shall not enjoy law." This deeply rooted obedience to the law may explain the present low crime rate in Norway, and also that to be a lawyer there is a rather poor profession. We also may deduce from this a respect for the individual and the development of a strong personality. The latter is shown in the Edda—Voice of Eld—a collection of songs found in a torn and battered Icelandic manuscript three centuries ago, dating as far back as to the ninth century. There really is an air of morning over these poems—"of great migration across virgin plains in the dewy freshness of dawn." The first impression they make upon the modern reader, trussed up in income tax and other hardships, is a great feeling of freedom.

Church Is Important.

Through the channels opened to Europe a flow of foreign impulses found their way into the country. The cathedrals and monasteries became the center of knowledge in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries. The architecture from this time also bears witness of great wealth within the Church.

I have devoted so-much time to the early history because I believe that the foundation of Norwegian tradition, kingdom, and democracy was laid down during these centuries. In 1937, Norway entered a union with Denmark which lasted for more than 400 years. The union is in the history of Norway mentioned as the "dark time" or "the long night." It meant for the Norwegian people all kinds of oppression—economic, social, political. For three centuries Norway had seemingly disappeared from the European society of nations. However, it was not wholly a time of despair; it involved a growth and preparation. In fact the particular development of the country had made its social constitution the most democratic in existence in all Europe, the only European country where practically no nobility was to be found. The written literature of this time is a cry for freedom and an appeal to the national feelings. The time developed a people with a love for freedom, but also with a want to escape into an imaginary world. Both aspects are to be found in the numerous folk-songs and fairytales created during these centuries.

The Revolution of 1814 came as a result of the Napoleonic Wars. There was no bloodshed; 112 delegates from different parts of the country came together, set up the Constitution and declared Norway as a free country. This was finished on the seventeenth of May, which is our national day. The essential matter was the establishment of a political democracy as the natural combined result of the preceding development of the general ideas of the Western World, in particular those which were expressed by the growth of parliamentary rule in England, and by the American and French Revolutions.

Literature Expresses Nation. The literature of modern Norway was born with the constitution. The national consciousness is expressed in the flourishing of literature and arts during the last part of the 19th century. It caused the rebirth of the Norwegian language and a general want for education. In the following decades our present day school system was laid down providing a free public education for

THE COLLEGE OATH

"We will never bring dishonor to this, our College, by any act of cowardice or dishonesty. We will fight for the ideals and sacred things of the College. We will revere and obey the College laws and do our best to incite a like respect and reverence in others. We will transmit this College to those who come after us, greater, better, and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us.

THE CAMPUS BEAUTIFUL

The College campus is a beautiful sight, no matter what the season. Whether bedecked in Autumn's fascinating colors, crowned with the ice and snow of winter, garbed in the lovely gown of spring, or dressed in the warm robe of summer, the campus is truly beautiful.

Now, halfway between spring and summer, the campus is unusually worthy of such an adjective. The campus is carpeted in green. Above the carpet are trees of many shades of green, for the campus can well boast of its variety of trees. Bushes have blossomed, adding light touches of color here and there over the campus.

But an ugly note has crept to the Campus Beautiful. Along the walks are papers, crumpled, dejected-looking papers of all the colors one can find around candybars or gum.

It seems strange that students cannot wait until they get from one building to another to throw such debris into the trash cans where it belongs. Yet, each day, more and more such papers fall on the campus. Apparently the students are not taking pride in their Alma Mater.

Do your part. Whenever you get ready to throw down a wrapper, stop awhile and think. If you take the right of throwing one down, all the other students should also have that right. If each student threw down one wrapper each day, within a week there would be thousands of gum and candy bar wrappers strewn over the campus. What an ugly sight that would be!

Just a small amount of energy on your part will take the wrapper to the next building to be thrown where it belongs, but many times that amount of energy is required for others to pick it up.

The campus is beautiful. Help keep it that way so that when guests are here the hosts can point with pride to our beautiful campus and not hang their heads with shame at the poor citizenship which the papers on the campus grounds seem to indicate.

WHAT YOU DON'T KNOW MAY HURT YOU

It is an old saying that "what we don't know doesn't hurt us." But is that true?

History is full of instances in which the lack of knowledge of what was going on has brought dire results. The war that is just past offers many instances. What we did not know did hurt us.

A young man recently had the following to say, "I wish they had made me take Spanish in college. We don't know, when we are in college, what we are going to need later. If I had known Spanish, I could have gone much farther in the work I have been doing." He was hurt by not knowing.

What's the use of taking that?" is a common question faculty advisers have to answer. Most faculty advisers have had experience enough to have some idea about what young people will need to know after college. The adviser might counsel the student, "What you know, my dear young person, won't hurt you."

"What you don't know doesn't hurt you" may be safe enough in some situations; but when it comes to knowledge, then the safer saying is "What you know won't hurt you."

Some years ago a young man learned a great deal about mathematics. When the war came along, he was chosen for special training as a weather man in the Navy. Because he knew mathematics, he not only received the training and served in the Navy, but came out with a Master of Science degree. Did what he knew hurt him?

NOTEWORTHY QUOTATIONS

"Nations would do well to emulate the attitude of students who patiently seek to add facts to facts, so that their interpretation and decision on a controversial issue will spring from knowledge and understanding, rather than from prejudice and passion."—Charles J. Turek, president of Macalester College.

"Without a knowledge of words there is no understanding men."—Confucius,

Police Program For Traffic Safety
CHECK YOUR CAR... CHECK YOUR CAR... CHECK ACCIDENTS
A LITTLE CHECKING CAN SAVE A LOT OF WRECKING!
YOU SAID EVERY MOTORIST
IACP

Since the end of gas rationing, traffic deaths have mounted alarmingly. In 1945, 28,500 persons were killed; 1,000,000 injured. There will be a much higher toll in 1946 unless all car owners drive safely and carefully in cars that are in safe mechanical condition. To curb the slaughter, the International Association of Chiefs of Police will launch a six week Traffic Safety Check program on May 15. The program will be conducted in all parts of the United States and Canada, with police officers checking the brakes, lights, tires, windshield wipers and horns of cars involved in accidents or traffic violations. Drivers are urged by the police to drive safely and courteously in cars that are mechanically sound, in order to reduce the shameful toll of automobile accidents.

According to the Agriculture Department, if each housewife would save only a slice of bread a day the national saving would be one million pounds of bread daily.

NEW YORK CITY—Use of copper tube for conveying water to homes, barns and to stock in the field are featured in a 4-color pamphlet being distributed to the nation's farmers by the Copper & Brass Research Association. Protection against insects through bronze screens and use of electricity over copper wiring for labor saving devices for the farm wife are also features of the pamphlet.

Invited Colleges Agree to Study General Education

CHICAGO, ILL.—ACP—The University of Chicago, has invited 18 colleges and universities to co-operate in a study on general education. The planning conference will begin next fall. During this conference they plan to pool their various founts of information in order that they can better study education.

The memorandum on such a co-operative project in general education is as follows: Developments during the last few years have greatly intensified national interest in general education. The experience of a number of colleges and universities in trying to provide programs of general education has resulted in fairly common agreement on the answers to certain questions that are raised in the process of developing such work.

There is common agreement that the purpose of general education is to provide the education necessary for the intelligent layman and citizen. There is also common agreement that a major part of the educational emphasis through the fourteenth grade should be upon general education. Experience has demonstrated that it is difficult, if not impossible, to get an adequate program of general education through the use of courses limited to specific subject fields and that general courses cutting across subject lines are usually necessary.

An eighty-year-old former undergraduate at the University of Arkansas recently registered to complete work he started sixty years ago. A junior in Arts and Science, he wants to major in English and Journalism.

From the Michigan State campus comes a report of a fad which has been discovered among returned veterans who have begun wearing their "homing pigeons" discharge buttons upside down to signify the fact they are bachelors.

Dr. Irene Mueller of the Biology department went to Central City, Nebraska, on Thursday evening, April 18, to spend the Easter recess with her family.

Texas A & M College Is Constructing Apartments

COLLEGE STATION, TEXAS—ACP—Construction work already has begun on the first of 128 apartment units to be built by the Federal Public Housing Authority for married veterans at Texas A. and M. College.

It is expected that the PFHA, which already has made 32 apartments at Bryan Army Air Field available to veteran students, will have the 128 units ready for occupancy before next September. Veterans and their families already have filled 217 college-owned apartments, and in addition couples are living in two other dormitories temporarily. A large number of students living in nearby Bryan are to move to the campus.

Paul Lynam, a student at the College, spent the Easter holidays as John Lanham's guest in Auburn, Illinois.

Franklin Eugene Papin, one of the sailors in the V-12 unit here in 1944 and 1945, was a visitor on the campus Monday, April 22.

The Stroller

One thing that has completely baffled the Stroller is just who is going to entertain whom on May 7. The Social Calendar has a "Reception for Col. _____" (name deleted for obvious reasons) under May 7. Nobody knows who Col. _____ was. Miss Locke was queried. She said, "Ask the president; he asked for the date." The task of querying the president was assigned to a members of the staff. The member of the staff begged Miss Dykes to do it. The president said he was as much in the dark as everybody else. Miss Dykes came back to the staff meeting and assigned the matter of finding out to the Stroller. And here is the report: "It must be a deep, dark secret. How it got on the calendar is still a mystery. No rewards are being offered for clues leading to discovery."

The Stroller does not run an announcement column, but he cannot help noticing the new crop of diamonds, one of the more recent of which belongs to Agnes Gustafson. The Stroller has thought a little about getting married himself, but marriage would handicap him somewhat as to the matter of getting around with his strolling.

He has been handicapped badly this week for nothing funny has happened. At least material for his column is scarce as hen's teeth.

The Stroller heard Mr. Dieterich tell Don Weeda that he should be passing around cigars. Guess the Stroller will have to look around for another diamond—or is it a frat pin?

President Jones sent in to the Stroller an item from The Minnesota Daily and asks the Stroller to let Residence Hall people know what is being done elsewhere: "The Gamma Phi answer their phone... 'This is Heaven—which angel do you want?'"

Louise Allen reports that she is soon going to change her name. The Stroller feels that her husband-to-be is one lucky fellow.

The Stroller saw Curtis Gard one evening recently with Irene Hunter. By the way, Curtis has disposed of his cane. According to latest reports many co-eds are glad to see that he is no longer carrying the cane. Did you throw away all the pins, Curtis? The Stroller imagines that perhaps Mr. Lyons misses the cane more than Curtis does, for now he can teach his class in peace.

The last few days the Stroller has noticed that Pauline Duff seems unusually happy. Could it be her man is coming home?

At least one class was glad to see the short course begin. How does it seem, you agriculture boys, to have so many girls in class? The Stroller almost wishes he were in that class, too.

Everyday the Stroller strolls along. And, as he strolls, he chants this little song, "Any jokes to hear, any corny 'pome,' Any diamond rings, any man come home."

Yes, the Stroller strolls, and as she does does She listens daily to voices buzz, Have you heard this? "Did you know that?" "Look at my new ring!" "Don't be such a cat!"

Yes, everyday the Stroller strolls along, And, as he strolls, he chants this little song, "Any strange events on our campus dear, Any couples new at the College here."

New Homes Feature Glass

PITTSBURGH, PA.—American home owners are showing an almost universal desire for more and bigger windows in their new dwellings.

Particularly are they interested in windows of the type that take up the entire wall of one room. Most homes now being built or planned include at least one of these large units. These windows not only add beauty to a house but also make heating easier by using the heat of the sun. They take less time to clean than small windows with the usual small panes.

First Prize Winner

Indicative of the new use of glass for homes is this design by architects Norman and Jean Fletcher which won first prize in the national "House For Cheerful Living" competition sponsored by Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Pittsburgh Corning companies. More than 900 architects competed. This design calls for an H-shaped unit of seven rooms with three bedrooms, a work and recreation room, living room, dining area, and a prefabricated utility and kitchen area.

Windows range in size from the normal units in the bedrooms to the full-wall sliding panels facing the living area. These panels permit use of the social court as an integral part of the living quarters. The national trend in home building is toward this type of functional use of windows and large areas of glass.

Norway: It Geography and People to sudden deaths caused by nature without violent emotional reactions, saying, "It was to happen in that way." The Norwegians are rather peaceful, proud of their country (perhaps too much so). They are not in such a hurry as the Americans. You may find them irritatingly slow. They are less practical than you. They are more traditional-bound. Their typical stubbornness has proved useful in their national life. They are highly individualistic, all of them like to have their own way, be it as wrong as it can be.

They have a strong feeling of justice. If they are moved by anything, they are deeply moved. Their mental attitude toward life is more serious than gay. Their imagination is vivid and often melancholy. All this is displayed in their cultural life which Steinbohl is going to tell you about.

Harold Younger of Omaha visited his sister, Lavon Hepburn, a student of the College last week-end. Mr. Younger recently received his discharge papers from the Army. He arrived in Maryville Thursday, April 25, and left Sunday, April 28.

Our present form of government would be best understood by a comparison to the English Parliament. It differs in the elective system, and as mentioned there is no "House of Lords." The King may exercise the veto twice; the third time the bill becomes law. Norway has had a labor government since 1935, and the election last summer was a new gain for the labor and communist parties, which together hold more than two-thirds of the representatives in the Storting (Congress).

The church is Evangelical Lutheran, endowed by the State and its clergy nominated by the King. All religions are tolerated, but only the state religion is taught in school. The elementary school is free and compulsory for seven years. It is the basic education, also for entry of vocational schools, military academies and high schools. In the latter, six years are required before entering the universities. The University of Oslo is the center of education and cultural life of Norway. In addition we have universities of agriculture, Technical University in Trondheim, Commercial University in Bergen, and six teachers' colleges for the education of teachers in the elementary school. Practically all educational institutions are endowed by the State and controlled by the Ministry of Education.

Up to this war Norway was rapidly progressing, providing a highly developed social security and a high standard of living. Its history reveals a hard-working, peace-loving people; a people with a deeply rooted respect for spiritual values, with a love for its country, and with a will to fight for the rights of the individual and for democracy. Its will to live was shown during the five years of resistance, a fight highly approved by other nations, not least by this The United States, which has shown it by giving all kinds of help to Norway, and by opening colleges and universities for Norwegian students.

The world's admiration for Norway was clearly stated in the following words by President Franklin D. Roosevelt at the beginning of this war. He said: "If there is anyone who still wonders why this war is being fought, let him look to Norway. . . . And if there is anyone who doubts the democratic will to win, again I say, let him look to Norway. He will in Norway, at once conquered and unconquerable, find the answer to his questions."

For Portraits of the Better Kind

Lucky Kids

These children have healthy teeth. They are a lot better off than most American children.

Right now, according to Dr. Walter H. Scherer, president of the American Dental Association, children between 6 and 18 years of age in the United States need more than 24,000,000 dental fillings, many millions of extractions and vast amounts of other corrective work.

Communities, states and the federal government must share with parents and dentists in the responsibility of providing sound dental health for all children, Dr. Scherer points out.

The ADA has a national program calling for (1) expanded research to find the causes of and new means of preventing dental diseases; (2) dental health education for all; and (3) dental care projects for every community, particularly for all children.

Dental health for children today will mean dental health for the entire nation tomorrow.

Football Hopefuls Begin Work-Outs

Captains for Scrimmage Sessions Will Be Appointed.

Twenty-five Bearcat hopefuls have checked out football uniforms and Coach Ryland Milner has them working out daily. No scrimmage sessions have been held but additions of former track men will make increased activity possible.

The eligibility rules for the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association, of which Maryville is a member, will be reinstated as of September 1, 1946.

As yet no captains have been picked for the 1946 season. Captains will be appointed for the scrimmage sessions.

Several changes have been made in the rules regarding passes and kick-offs.

Former wearers of the Green and White are Paul Wilson, Howard Glavin, Paul Whitfield, Bruce Peters, Errol Meyers, John Lanham, and Rex Adams.

Other men out for Spring football include Eugene French, Robert Olson, John Colyn, Harold Job, Donald Harshness, David Murphy, Robert Weston, Eugene Cross, George Andrews, William Ellis, Dewey Drennan, Byron (Bud) Baker, Charles Juvenal, Dean Beemer, Buell Payne, James Smith, Allan Henningsen, Paul Butherus, and William Coulter.

Who Said "The Weaker Sex?"

It's a tough game—with plenty of good old American competition—but Mrs. Mabel C. Herman, with her fleet of Fruehauf tank-trailers, does all right carrying petroleum through Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa.

Starting in 1935, Mrs. Herman bought half-interest in a truck from an Indian and his wife. That same year she mortgaged her share in the truck to get her first trailer, and in ten years has built up a fleet of nine Fruehaufs.

With most hauls originating from pipeline terminals at Omaha, Neb.; Council Bluffs, Iowa; and vicinity, her trailers radiate out on a 200-mile circuit, hauling gasoline, fuel oil and other petroleum products to bulk plants and factories.

Mrs. Herman's fleet consists of one 6,000-gallon and two 5,400-gallon tandem-axle units, and six 4,250-gallon single-axle trailers. Total mileage hauled by Herman Oil Transport last year was 1,080,000, an average of 10,000 miles per vehicle per month, carrying a total of more than 15,500,000 gallons for the year.

The Maryville high school Spofthoods surprised even themselves by taking second in class B of the annual Northwest Missouri high school track meet held April 27 at the Teachers College. They took 30 5-6 points to be runner-up to Savannah in the meet.

Although Benton didn't have a walk-away, the Cardinals of St. Joseph had a nine-point edge, 66 1-3 to 57 1-3, over their Central rivals of St. Joseph in class A. Lafayette trailed badly for third place.

Horace Mann of Maryville garnered eight points in class C in which 13 schools placed with Tarkio running off with the class on the superb performance of its ace, Jack Davis, who took five firsts.

Good Discus Heave

After a damp morning the annual track carnival turned out fair and somewhat warmer. No records were established but Bob Kline of St. Joseph, an all-around athlete, threatened the shot put record and finally got warmed up in the discus to outmeasure the record. However, his throw of 141 feet 10 inches in the discus came after his regular attempts in which his best toss was 133 feet 11 inches.

The record in the discus is 135 feet 2 1/2 inches, made by Zweifel of Chillicothe in 1940. The shot put record is 47 feet 8 inches. Kline's best toss Saturday was 47 feet 4 1/2 inches.

Maryville's relay teams featured the class B events. The Spofthoods won the medley, with Christian Brothers making a strong finish. Coulter, Holt, Lyle and Jones ran the two 110's, 220 and quarter mile in 1:48.

The thrill came in the 880 yard relay in which Coulter picked up a deficit and Lyle gave Maryville a lead. Coming into the stretch Duane Willis and Howard Moore of Cameron were running neck and neck and the final decision was a dead heat.

Central swept both class A relays and Rock Port did the same in Class C. In the O division the teams ran against time as there were two heats in each event.

Seymour a Standout

With Savannah holding a good lead in class B the other teams were well bunched, with only a few points difference between Maryville, Christian Brothers, Cameron and Princeton.

Seymour of Craig, who runs with his arms tight against his body, had the best time in any class in the half and mile runs. Seymour took big leads in class C to win the half in 2:08.3 and the mile in 4:52.2. In the other classes the mile went over five minutes.
